Man Drowns As Fox River Boat Swamps

A boatman's holiday ended in tragedy Sunday just west of Grass Lake for a young Chicagoan and his companions.

Their small boat which swamped took to the bottom of the Fox River 20-year-old Robert Hill of 2431 W. Thomas St.

His bride of two months, Peggy, 23, and two others were rescued. Hill and his wife were accompanied by Milton Stacy, 25, also of 2431 W. Thomas St., and Ray Clayton, 20, of 2141 Ohio St., Chicago. The three who were saved by other boaters, reportedly could not swim.

Dragging operations by volunteers and members of the Antioch Rescue Squad, were conducted from a resort at Grass Lake owned by Charles Haling.

Overloaded

Witnesses on hand at the scene told Haling of seeing one end of the boat go down suddenly, and observed that it held about "two too many people."

Another expressed that it was too small a boat for the size motor it carried.

In another accident reported by the Antioch rescue squad Saturday night two boaters swam to safety after their craft overturned.

The incident occurred in a channel off Channel Lake, near Antioch, when the two occupants were trying to start the outboard motor.

Safe ashore were Sonnie L. Swanson, 25, of 1958 N. Lincoln Ave. and Cecil Lowry, 21, of 432 Armitage Ave., both of Chicago.

Recover Body

The drowning victim's body was recovered Monday at 6 p.m. about 500 feet downstream from the scene of the mishap.

The body was removed to Chicago for services. Burial will be in Booneville, Miss.

Sheriffs' Association To Hold Big Dance

The Lake County Deputy Sheriffs' Association will hold its 18th annual dance on Saturday, Aug. 26, at the Wing 'N' Fin Lodge on Rte. 12 just north of Volo.

King Jaro, a well-known dance band, will be one of two organizations furnishing music starting at 8:30 p.m.

The Lake County Deputy Sheriffs' Association was founded 18 years ago to assist any active deputy at the time of illness or stress.

The Association depends entirely upon the public's support at the annual dance, according to Harold D. Millison, chairman of the dance committee.

Substitute Teachers Wanted at Emmons

Qualified persons available for substitute teaching during the coming school year are asked to contact John F. Yandas, principal of Emmons Grade School, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Yandas said interested persons may either phone the school, or stop by the office, Highway 59 and Beach Grove Rd., for information.

County Board Rezones Area for Camp Ground

The County Board of Supervisors has authorized rezoning for a park camp ground, picnic area, boat launching site, and marina in Antioch township.

S. E. Bowles had requested permission to rezone 160 acres of farm land for business.

The land lies a half-mile south of Rte. 173 from the Fox River to the McHenry County line.

Board Awards Contracts For Two Village Streets

The Antioch Village Board went into special session Tuesday night and came up with good news for Ida Ave. residents.

A contract for improvement of the street, from Main St. east to the Soo Line tracks, was awarded to the Eric Bolander Construction Co. of Libertyville.

The Bolander firm was low bidder for the project, submitting a bid of $18,511.65.

Work will begin as soon as Motor Fuel Tax funds for the job are approved by the state.

One other contender for the job, Lake Land Construction Co. of McHenry, bid $19,995.22.

Curbs and gutters will be installed, and Ida Ave. will be black-topped.

The Board also opened bids and awarded a contract for the extension of Anita Ave.

The contract was awarded to Lake Land Construction Co., which submitted a low bid of $4,982.04.

The Leo J. Fox Excavating Co. of Antioch submitted a bid of $7,165.03.

The Lake Land firm will begin work on the project within 10 days.

Anita Ave. will be extended, in "rough cut" form, from Depot St. to North Ave.

In one other action Tuesday night the Board passed a levy ordinance providing $50,300 to run the community for the coming year.

Antioch High Class of '34 Holds Hum-Dinger Reunion

The Class of 1934 of ATHS held a reunion Saturday night at Joe & Helen's Restaurant, Loon Lake.

To observe 27 years since graduation (their first get-together) 27 former graduates, their husbands and wives, and three teachers, met for a steak dinner and an evening of reminiscence.

Miss Cornelia Roberts, their class adviser, told that she began talking at the age of nine months and hasn't stopped yet. Miss Alice Smith, Latin and history teacher, spoke a few words also. Dr. Gerald Reed of Oshkosh, Wis., former coach, said that he wished the football players of '34 "were the size then that they are now."

Paul Zeien of Channel Lake was the master of ceremonies for the evening. An old honor roll, was read, and letters from classmates and teachers not attending were presented. Each guest introduced himself and told of his work and family.

Special surprise awards were given to the one with the oldest child, the youngest child, the most grandchildren, the one who traveled the farthest to be there (Ray Hussy, from Deland, Fla.), the man with the most youthful appearance, the man who had the highest forehead, the only classmate who married another classmate, and the gal whose weight is the same now as then, (there were several).

Letters were received from John Descher of Hoquiam, Wash.; Jack Panowski of Los Alamos, N. M.; Holger Nielsen of Compton, Calif.; Russell Hunter of Bethesda, Md.; Kenneth Hills of San Diego, Calif.; and Hans Von Holwede of Los Altos, Calif.; also others not so distant.

Three deceased members of the class were named: Bernice Bauman Zeien, Howard Dibble and Marvin Van Patten.

Letters will be sent to each classmate telling of the whereabouts of all. Another reunion is to be held in three years with the same committee, plus Harold Fennema of Burlington, Wis. It is hoped more will be located by that time, than could be found for this meeting.

Homan Hospitalized

Mr. Henry Homan of Channel Lake is a patient at Victory Memorial Hospital, Waukegan, where he has been confined since Aug. 7. He was to undergo further tests Wednesday to determine the nature of his illness.

Mr. Cunningham Takes the Steak

WILMOT—A magnificent 957-pound Shorthorn was named grand champion steer at the Kenosha County Fair here.

And Mayor Murrill Cunningham of Antioch took home the steak. Cunningham purchased the prize-winner from Clara Neilsen for 34¢ cents a pound—on the hoof.

What's he going to do with the champion?

"Eat it," he said. "I butchered it Monday morning."

Cunningham said profits from the prize winning cattle at the fair go to help 4-H club members.

The fair, which ended Sunday after a four-day run, attracted more than 37,000 people.

A highlight of Sunday afternoon's activities was a tractor pulling contest in the grandstand area. LeRoy Gwaltney of Lake Villa took third place in the competition. First was Norbert Fliess of Somers, the second was William McDonald, Pleasant Prairie.

Candy Lane Store Has New Proprietor

A grand opening of Candy Lane, the confectionery at 403 Lake St., will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 1 and 2.

The store, formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gressens, has been purchased by Mrs. Betty Anderson. Mrs. Anderson, formerly a teacher at Antioch Grade School, now teaches at Gavin School in Ingle-side.

"There will be no change in policy or in brands of merchandise," she said.

Lindenhurst Board OKs Levy Ordinance

LINDENHURST—The Lindenhurst Village Board has passed a levy ordinance setting funds to run the village in the coming year at $15,505.

The Board also approved the hiring of two building inspectors for the community, instead of one.

Another ordinance passed makes it illegal to drive negligently within the village limits.

Antioch Goes Modern At 2 a. m. This Sunday

Tax Red Tape Ties Up New School Bids

The new sales tax law, which for the first time puts a levy on building materials, has snarled bidding for a near $1 million addition to Antioch High School.

Board members called a meeting for Wednesday night to try to untangle the problem.

$995,000 bond issue, approved by voters Feb. 11, will be used to finance the project.

Warren Polley, assistant principal, said 12 firms bid on the general contract, with five alternate bids each, but some bidders failed to make allowances for the new sales tax.

There were seven bids for the electrical contract, nine for the plumbing job, and eight for heating and ventilating.

Polley said one uncertain bidder indicated his bid would be $10,000 lower if the sales tax were not considered.

A two-story brick structure is proposed, fronting on Main St., and connected to the present school by corridors.

The building will have 11 classrooms, five science rooms, a cafeteria kitchen, library, study hall, offices, and washroom facilities.

The present building will be remodeled to give more space to athletic facilities, band, and laboratory areas.

Study Sewage Treatment For W. Lake County

Final negotiations have taken place between the Lake County Health Department and the consulting engineer firm of Consoer, Townsend & Associates to initiate the study of the feasibility of sewers and sewage treatment facilities for the portion of Lake County not draining to Lake Michigan and not within the limits of the North Shore Sanitary District.

The formal contract for the engineering services in connection with the proposed study was signed by members of the Lake County Board of Health and representatives of the engineering firm, it was announced by Arthur G. Baker, M. D., director of the Lake County Health Department.

The study will determine the amount of treated sewage that the Fox and DesPlaines Rivers can accept without harm.

The study should also determine the most feasible plan of intercepting sewers and sewage treatment on a county-wide basis, based on engineering considerations, such as drainage basins and water sheds, the capacity of receiving waters and the existing sewer system and sewage treatment facilities.

The final report will also cover the economical considerations of the various areas to be served in order to tie in the existing properties with the anticipated development into an economically workable plan.

It is planned to hold monthly meetings, which will be available to the public during the six months, which the study will be in progress.

Board to Study New Pump House Bids

New bids for the Lake Villa pump house to be constructed on McKinley Avenue, will be accepted at the Sept. 11 meeting of the village board.

The board turned down two bid specifications at its meeting earlier this month when a representative of Allen-Munger & Associates, engineers, found the two bid specifications incomplete.

The board granted permission for the Cadet Drill Team to conduct a tag day Aug. 18-19 to raise money for uniforms and travel.

Two Motorists Now Without Licenses

An Antioch motorist and a Lake Villa man have had their driver's licenses suspended for having three traffic violations.

Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter identified them as Bruno Manzardo, 441 Winsor Dr., Antioch, and Stuart M. Cox, 473 Engle Dr., Lake Villa.

Rain

The U. S. Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook for August calls for heavy rainfall and below normal temperatures for the northern half of Illinois, with moderate rain and near normal temperatures for the southern half of the state.

Dial System Takes Over Telephones

At exactly 2 a.m. Sunday, August 20, Antioch will become the most modern community—communications wise—in Lake County.

At that moment Antioch will not only convert to a dial telephone system, but to ultra-modern all numbers dialing.

This is also the new Direct Distance Dialing, which enables subscribers to dial almost anywhere in the United States—even such remote places as Zion and Waukegan.

All Phones In

The new phones, themselves, have already been installed.

All that remains is for the Bell Telephone men to pull a switch.

The story behind the scenes at the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. here—what is happening now and what will take place at 2 a.m. August 20—is told in a special section, starting on page nine, in today's Antioch News.

Don't Dial Yet

Donald Hood, Illinois Bell manager here, reminds all customers that the dials on their telephones will not work until Sunday.

Antioch's dependable telephone operators are still at work.

This is the last week you will hear their voices, unless you want to call them up at home to say, "Congratulations for doing a fine job through the years."

Name Erickson To Heart Post

Here's Lawn Care Lowdown!

If your lawn needs a "shot in the arm," renovating will do the trick, says W. R. Nelson, Jr., landscape specialist at the University of Illinois.

Nelson advises renovating, or rejuvenating, lawns in August and seeding them in September. The fall growth, plus next spring's growth, produces a sod that resists crabgrass and other weeds.

To renovate, follow these steps:

1. Kill the weeds first. The type and quantity of weed killer to use depends on the weeds. For broadleaf weeds, use 2, 4-D or 2, 4, 5-T.

2. Apply fertilizer and grub-proofing materials 10 days after the last treatment with weed killers. Also apply lime if the soil is acid.

3. Mow closely, and rake.

4. Smooth the lawn and fill in low places with fine topsoil.

5. Seed with a mixture that's adapted to your soil and area. Use half the rate recommended for a new lawn.

6: Roll after seeding to smooth the surface and firm the seed into the soil.

7. Water immediately after rolling. Moisten only the upper inch of soil. When the soil is dry, water once a day for two weeks. Then water less often, but use more water.

8. Mow when the old grass reaches a height of 2½ inches, regardless of the height of the new grass.

For more information on lawn care, Illinois residents may get a free copy of Circular 729 from their county farm adviser or write to the College of Agriculture, 110 Mumford Hall, Urbana, for a copy. The circular is entitled "How to Have an Attractive Lawn."

A Word On Vandals

What can be wrong?

Where can the fault lie when three young girls — mere children — 8 and 10 years old, admit to vicious vandalism?

We bring to mind the destruction of Diamond Lake Methodist Church on August 2.

These youngsters have admitted their part, relating how they went about the job, but can offer no reason as to why they did it! One of the girls had even attended the church and sang in the choir.

They are not only girls and guilty of vandalism, but also wrote on the walls and altar in obscene language.

Where can girls learn to apply filthy words at this age?

Is the fault in their association, and, if so, who allows it? Do parents realize where youngsters this age are and what they are doing?

There are many, many little angels this age and we are proud of them and their parents for so raising them, but what went wrong here?

There must be shame and sorrow in the hearts of these children's parents, but this feat of theirs is inexcusable.

It may be that in discovering their guilt, their future lives can be saved from criminalistic ways, but the real problem facing us now is:

How will they be punished?

What medium of punishment for a child that age? It is sorrow and sadness to make that decision.

A Soldier Is for Soldiering

Some hold the opinion that President Kennedy went too far in his masterful presentation of the dangers confronting this country by communism and his plans to contain this menace in Berlin and elsewhere.

There is plenty of evidence, however, that he did not go far enough.

His first step should not have been calling more men to the Colors. It should have been freeing those we now have under arms from all concerns other than those of soldiering.

This means that troops now on duty should get on the job of soldiering . . . put the recruiters back in harness, corral the many Army publicists in radio and TV units, trim down the base newspaper staffs.

Too many in our armed forces are nothing more than civilians in uniform.

This move alone would go a long way toward filling our service deficit.

Across the pond too many soldiers are enmeshed in a happy round of schools, clubs, safaris, junkets, sports car races and other so-called morale functions.

It's no secret that there are at least 750,000 non-military Americans in the Greater European Theatre at any given time — wives, children, visitors, salesmen, technicians, camp followers . . . who would demand and receive help should Nikita blow the whistle.

We don't feel that a soldier with the serious business of preparation at hand can be a top soldier, a first-rate husband and father at the same time . . . not with the conflicting demands and pressures from all sides.

Gen. MacArthur wrapped it all up frankly and neatly in a short chat before a few officers set to embark for New Guinea in the summer of 1942: "You're soldiers first . . . husbands, sons, sweethearts, fathers, second."

Mothers, fathers, sons, daughters, wives and sweethearts may not agree. But that's the way it's always been and the way it's always gotta be for soldiers in time of stress.

We had a tough time air transporting and supplying two full divisions of only 30,000 men to Puerto Rico for Operation Big Pine in 1959. That was only 30,000. We've got 750,000 dependents scattered throughout Europe.

And if anyone thinks Uncle Sam wouldn't make every effort to transport these people to safety as the Number 1 priority even at the sacrifice of the needs of the Armed Forces, he just doesn't understand the basic thinking of our system.

Yes, President Kennedy could have gone a long way toward solving part of our immediate manpower problem by freeing our Armed personnel from many of the non-military burdens with which they are now saddled and by trimming down the horde of fringe personnel which surrounds every base.

It wouldn't have been politic and sounds of anguish would have resounded throughout the land as they did last year when President Eisenhower ordered dependents home.

But it would have been a sound move from the standpoint of military preparedness . . . and that seems to be our present goal.

Great Books Day To Be Held In Lake Villa

Great Books Day, a traditional Fall event in Chicago where the idea was born, will be observed in Lake Villa on Saturday, Aug. 19, under the sponsorship of the Lake Villa Township Library in co-operation with the Great Books Foundation.

Its purpose is to acquaint residents of the community and surrounding area with the Great Books Group Discussion Program.

Mrs. E. R. Proise, library board member, said, "A program such as Great Books answers a real need in our area in that it offers an opportunity for the exchange of interesting, stimulating ideas in an informal situation."

A Great Books discussion group in a community provides a medium for free adult liberal education. There is no tuition and no particular educational background is required, she added.

Anyone wishing to learn how a Great Books discussion group functions is invited to stop by the Lake Villa Township Library on this date. Participants in last year's sessions will occupy a booth outside the library to answer questions and to distribute pamphlets explaining the program.

The Lake Villa Library will be open in the morning from 10 until 12 and in the afternoon from 2 until 5.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Mary Joost at Lake Villa, ELiot 6-7318.

Teen Dance

The CYO of the Prince of Peace Church of Lake Villa will sponsor a dance Saturday, Aug. 19, from 8 p.m. to midnight in the church hall. All teenagers are invited.

Ladies Game Ap(parent)ly a Smash (?) Hit (?)

Wild Day Of Baseball Comes True

(Editor's Note: A Little League mother, after watching junior play ball all summer, tried it out herself Sunday, with some modifications. We print, herewith, the anonymous author's unexpurgated version of how the game transpired.)

Baseball, oh baseball
The ball we can't see.
For such confused Mothers
And Fathers are we.
The game was a blast.
What was that we asked?
As the ball went merrily past.

To say we had quite a turnout for our games last Sunday would be putting it mildly. If some one knew anything about baseball before the mothers' game, by the time it was over not one of us was sure about anything.

The bases were run in reverse, with third base at first, etc. If you got a hit and could have made it, by the time you realized you were going to the wrong base you were out anyway.

What a "riot" or should it read "the confused mothers." We believe "Bubbles Donahue" stole the show. You've heard the expression "Kill the Ump." She really shot 'em dead (being Nick Badame dressed up as one of us gals.)

Of course "Doc" Carlucci at the mike did his bit too! The names he gave the ladies were quite the thing; ever hear of "Pinky" Carlucci or Killer Babe?

Of course the fathers and managers game was no pro game either. With the Little Leaguers umping and calling the plays, that volley ball the men used really came in handy. They thought they knew how to play ball, too, but I'll bet they were stiffer, than the ladies for work Monday morning.

Actually the big game of the day was the Dodgers vs. Giants with the Dodgers winning at a dead run of 13 to 0. The game was as always a pleasure to watch. Those boys play their hearts out and it always takes a better team to be a good loser.

There will be a special meeting called in September of the parents, both mothers and fathers, to elect officers for next year, including Auxiliary, cleaning committee, managers, etc.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all mothers and fathers who either played ball, worked in stands or just came down to watch. If it wasn't for them we wouldn't have any Little Leaguers!

Public Drawing For Duck Blind At Grass Lake

Flaschner Paces L. League Hitters with .534 Average

Guy Flaschner of the White Sox, won the individual batting title for the 1961 Lakeland Little League season, according to statistics released this week by Dan Vanderzee, league secretary.

Jeff Wheeler of the Braves was second in the hitting department with a .500 average. He hit safely 28 times in 56 trips to the plate. Allie Luke of the Yankees was close behind in third with a .491 mark, and Johnny Paoli of the Pirates hit at a .474 clip to nail down fourth place.

Luke was second in home runs with nine round trippers, followed by Mike Vanderzee of the Yankees with six, and Jim Williams, Yankee teammate with five.

Antioch High School Opens Football Sessions Aug. 25

Equipment will be issued on Friday, Aug. 25, for the Antioch High School Football team, Coach Robert Walther has announced.

The order and time in which equipment will be given is as follows:

Varsity team—8 a.m.; Sophomore—10 a.m.; Freshmen—1 p.m.

"Each person must bring his health card before any gear will be released to him," warned Coach Walther.

The beginning practice session will be on Monday, August 28 at 9 a.m. with an afternoon meet at 12:30.

McHenry will play host at the opening games on Saturday, Sept. 16 at 6:15 and 8 p.m.

List Coaches

Varsity coaches this year are Walther, returning for his fifth year and Rodger Andrews, entering his second year.

Roy Nelson will be the sophomore coach for the fourth time.

Coaching the freshmen will be two second year men, Doug Risberg and Bill Seemann.

Varsity managers conclude the roster with John Siddeman, Rich Jungman and Fred Andrews.

Name Lettermen

Coach Walther listed his returning lettermen as follows:

Speaking of his varsity staff, Coach Walther had this to say: "We will have a fast backfield and fast line with better than average intelligence. Our backfield will average 160 pounds and the line 180. We should have a good defensive team but lack experience on offense."

Walther said particular emphasis in pre-season work would be placed on quarterback, tackle and line-backs.

Boys moving up from the sophomore squad are Rich Fitch, Rich Fowles, Doug Lang, Dione Rathbone and Les Geist.

Praises Sophs

Of his sophomore team, Walther said "This squad had an excellent season last year and are expected to repeat again this year at the sophomore level."

The ones he chose as showing promise are: Dean Horton, Tom Furlan, Dave Cardiff, Mike Zelen, Ken Shewan and Rick Prossie.

"From spring questionnaires we hope to welcome the largest freshman squad in Antioch's history. We expect over 50 boys to report," Walther said.

"All told, we should suit up over 100 boys for football in this fall," he added.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 20

Antioch has progressed a long way ... from the horse and buggy to the jet age ... Now, Illinois Bell Telephone Company has brought modern, progressive dial phoning to the area. Contained in this section is a world of information about the telephone, Illinois Bell Telephone Company and especially about the new all number calling.

Starting Sunday at 2 a.m. all Antioch telephone numbers will begin with the prefix 395, followed by four figures. There will be no one, two or three digit numbers as we presently have.

For example, the Antioch News phone numbers are 43 and 44. Starting Sunday, our new number will be 395-4111. To telephone the news you will dial 3-9-5-4-1-1-1. We will still have two lines and if one is busy the other line will automatically ring.

Be sure to read all the behind the scenes stories that has made this improvement possible. Join with us in congratulating the Telephone Company on their new dial system, a most welcome addition to the community.

The Antioch News

Dial Cutover a Matter of Minutes

Here's the split-second time table on Antioch's changeover to dial next Sunday, August 20.

Just before 2:00 A. M., Sunday, operators in the manual exchange office at 932 Main Street, will explain to anyone using his telephone that his service is going to be changed to dial and to please dial his call later—after two o'clock.

And, in case you're wondering "Why two o'clock in the morning," it's not for any dramatic reason, says Chief Operator Mrs. Irene Noble. It was chosen because the number of calls going through the exchange is normally at low ebb. Interruption of service, she explained, is more easily prevented.

If any emergency calls are in progress, Mrs. Noble said, "the cutover, of course, will be delayed." At the same time, Bell telephone men on the second floor of the manual exchange will be ready to remove the thousands of "heat coils," a type of fuse used on telephone lines.

A tug of a cord will snap these fuses from position, cutting off Antioch's 4,300 telephone lines from the old manual switchboards in a matter of seconds. Another crew stationed before the dial equipment in the new building, 531 Lake Street, also will stand ready.

Then comes the signal to cut the new exchange into service.

Wire Chief Ernie Sydnor gives the word through a special telephone hook-up. Calvin Gwynne, central office foreman, hears the signal through his phone headset, gives a hand signal and his crew pulls the heat coils from the manual equipment. Gwynne, in the dial equipment rooms, also gets the two o'clock signal. Moving fast, his men pull out the "skivvies," tiny fiber insulating pins which now prevent the dial equipment from working.

The heat coils scatter to the floor; the old office goes dead. Skivvies pop from the equipment in the new dial building; the dial switches start clicking. And—your dial phone is ready for its first call. Operators will be standing by, ready to begin handling customers' emergency or assistance calls, and calls that cannot be dialed direct to distant points.

CABLE DEVICES

Within the transatlantic cable opened in 1956 are 306 amplifying vacuum tubes and 6,000 associated electronic devices designed to operate continuously without attention for 20 years.

Many New Developments In Modern Communications

The new dial switching system which makes its debut Sunday in Antioch is the product of years of research and experience.

But, it's just one of the devices which the search for faster and more dependable communications has turned up.

There's TWX, the teletypewriter, which sends messages over wire and simultaneously types them in distant places, according to Manager D. L. Hood.

Messages transmitted by "twix," as it's sometimes called, have broken many an historic newspaper story, caught criminals, fought wars and serviced business.

Another development is the private wire networks of more than a half-a million miles in length over which the press sends a stream of news and pictures.

Network radio broadcasting programs are also sped over telephone lines from their points of origin to the radio station which broadcasts them locally. Television programs are brought to your home through coaxial cable and microwave radio relay networks.

"We're called the telephone company," Hood said, "but really our business is communications—communications of any kind to meet any problem."

Telephone systems are now available for automobiles, trains, airplanes, ships, to control gas and liquid pumping over long distances, and to regulate entire electrical power systems.

Plans Started Many Years Ago

The Antioch changeover to dial started several years ago with a group of engineers who decided what equipment would be needed to handle all calls that would both originate and terminate here.

Next the job went to a group of building engineers whose job it was to decide what kind of a building this equipment should be housed in. Long before ground was broken in March, 1960, an order was placed with Western Electric Company to start building the dial equipment.

Then, of course, there was the contractor who erected the building and many sub-contractors who supplied such things as electrical wiring and plumbing.

After the building was dedicated last August, Western Electric men began installing the new dial system.

Most of the Western Electric men have moved on to other communities to install more dial equipment and the job of testing and maintaining the equipment has been turned over to Illinois Bell under Wire Chief Ernie Sydnor.

But, even with dial service beginning today, Illinois Bell crews will continue the never-ending job of testing and maintaining the two floors of equipment.

LAB SCIENTISTS

Bell Laboratories in New Jersey have 10,800 employees, one-third of whom are professional scientists and engineers.

BELL SCIENTIST DISCOVERS SPACE SIGNALS

Karl G. Jansky, a young physicist at Bell Laboratories, designed and built a large rotatable antenna and a sensitive radio receiver in the early 1930's to study static and noises that disrupted transatlantic radio-telephone service.

With this equipment, he discovered radio waves coming from a dark section in the Milky Way and the science of radio astronomy was born.

Present-day radio telescopes, descendants of Jansky's antenna, resemble huge dishes pointed toward the sky. With them, scientists can detect radio waves from outer space and record them on graphs and charts, thus making "visible" things beyond the range of sight.

New knowledge of the universe, far beyond the dreams of early astronomers, is now possible.

FAST NUMBER OF CONNECTIONS

More than 1,600,000,000,000,000 different connections are available in the Bell System for switching calls throughout the nation.

Dial systems have helped achieve this vast potential. More than 80 per cent of Bell telephones today are dial operated and the number is increasing.

All Number Calling

BY DONALD HOOD
Illinois Bell Manager

All-Number Calling, Antioch's new telephone numbering system, came into being as naturally as the nose on surprised faces of many old telephone employees. And, like all good numbering systems, it all began with the number 1.

When the telephone was born in 1876, there wasn't any need for a numbering system. You just shouted "Hello, John" into the mouthpiece. And John shouted back.

Even where there were a dozen or so using the telephone, the only change in calling was the use of full names to distinguish between John Brown and John Smith.

As more telephones were added, a numbering system became necessary. And the first number assigned was "1."

Soon, telephone numbers were being handed out right and left. And as one telephone exchange grew and filled to capacity with telephone lines, another popped up somewhere else to take the overflow.

Operators—and in those days most operators were boys—had to know through which exchange each call was coming. So they called the first one "Main," and the next one "Branch," and the next one "North," and so on. When folks asked for a number then, they said "Operator, give me Main 4410, please."

Then, dial telephones began to appear. Telephone people designed them so combinations of numbers and letters could be dialed. The letters of the alphabet—except "Q" and "Z"—were arranged in groups around the dial.

At that time, it was decided there would always be plenty of telephone numbers in supply for new customers. To place a call then, you simply dialed the first three letters of the "exchange" name and then the four figures. Already, seven simple swings of the dial were in vogue.

In Chicago, for example, to dial Central 3299, one dialed "C-E-N-3-2-9-9."

Old-timers sat back and said, "Well, that takes care of the problem of telephone numbers."

But telephone growth throughout the nation proved them wrong.

From their system, some 325 practical three-letter combinations were possible on the dial. But soon the big metropolitan areas needed more combinations. By substituting a figure for the third letter of the exchange name (for example, CENtral 6-3299), they increased the usable combination to 540.

"That ought to hold the line," said one old-timer.

"Wrong again," said a young telephone engineer, dreaming ahead toward the coming of Direct Distance Dialing. "We'll need a lot more number combinations."

America was growing at a rapid pace. Instead of being content to talk over the phone only to our neighbors, we had envisioned calling clear across the country.

Now, the era of dialing direct to folks across the nation was starting. Everybody needed telephone numbers, and each telephone number had to be different.

A good start was achieved by dividing the country into Numbering Plan Areas, each with the three-figure code. With Direct Distance Dialing, one could dial first the area code for the general locality to which he was calling. Following this with the seven-figure number would take him in seconds to the right telephone.

But, if too many numbering plan areas were formed, everyone would soon be dialing ten instead of seven figures for their calls. So, more seven figure combinations were needed.

Someone remembered how telephone number combinations for the first few digits had gone from 325 to 540 by changing the third letter to any figure from 1 to 9. There were two letters left—why not change them to figures? In doing so, telephone engineers found they now had 800 usable combinations for the first digits of telephone numbers. Now there were enough telephone numbers to last as far into the future as man could see—perhaps well into the 21st Century.

But to top it off, the same engineers discovered by using all numerals, they eliminated confusion, misspelling and mispronunciation which were handicaps of the letter-figure system.

They called the new system "All-Number Calling"—(ANC for short)—and it came just in time for Antioch. For by changing to the new system at the same time as Antioch's conversion to dial, a future mass change to the new system will be avoided.

All-Number Calling is modern, fast, easy, accurate dialing today, with the promise of even greater telephone service tomorrow.

SOUND MOVIES BY-PRODUCT OF TELEPHONE

On Aug. 6, 1926, Western Electric and Bell Telephone Laboratories, in collaboration with Warner Bros. Pictures and the Vitaphone Corp., gave the world an exciting new by-product of telephone research—sound motion pictures.

On that date the premier of the world's first successful commercial sound picture, "Don Juan," starring John Barrymore, amazed a Broadway audience in New York.

Bell System scientists and engineers labored for years to perfect devices that helped give a satisfactory technique for recording and reproducing sound synchronized with motion pictures.

Improper Use Of Dial Phone Shows on Board

Improper dialing will not mean that Antioch telephone users are out of luck in placing a call or left stranded without knowing they are using the dial incorrectly.

If this happens, a signal automatically will indicate to the operator on duty that someone is having difficulty. The operator then will be able to give advice and assistance.

For example, suppose a person dials the wrong first figures of a seven-figure number.

A small light on a certain section of the switchboard in the telephone office will show that the caller has dialed the incorrect figures. An operator will answer the call, ask what number is desired and what number the party is calling.

With this information, the operator will inform the customer that a mistake has been made in dialing and give instructions on proper procedure.

Other cases of trouble may arise if the caller does not dial within 40 seconds after lifting the receiver, dials first and then takes the receiver off the hook, doesn't hang up after a call is completed or if equipment is out of order.

The light on the board will indicate these conditions.

The operator also will be able to detect faulty long distance dialing.

Western Electric Joins Bell System

Western Electric Company "joined" the Bell Telephone System in 1882, six years after Alexander Graham Bell first patented the telephone. It serves as the manufacturing and supply arm of the Bell System, and it purchases needed tools and equipment from more than 30,000 suppliers throughout the country.

Western Electric thus far has manufactured more than 100 million telephones and tens of thousands of tons of telephone equipment and cables.

Since 1882 there have been 25 distinctive "models" of the Bell regular telephone and 23 distinctive types of wall or "hang up" phones. During these years many improvements and design changes have been made in various parts of the telephone.

such as spinning the correct area code number but waiting too long to dial the phone number in that area.

Since all long distance calls require 10 digits (area code and seven numerals) the light also will signal on the board if someone dials less than 10 digits.

The operators usually will provide instructions and ask the patron to place the call again.

However, in certain circumstances such as emergencies the operator will place the call properly.

GOOD VOICE IMPORTANT

Telephone officials point out that a good telephone voice is important in business and social life. Here are a few tips they pass along to users:

1. Give the impression you are wide-awake and alert, interested in the calling person.
2. No matter how attractive or alert you are, people will not know it if your telephone voice is a dull monotone. An expressive voice will carry your personality over the wire.

3. Just be yourself. Use a tone of voice and vocabulary which truly expresses your own best natural self.
4. Be pleasant and friendly; it makes friends for yourself and your company.
5. Use clear, distinct speech. Your lips should be a half-inch from the mouthpiece and should be used freely to form the words.

Plan Consolidation Of 4 Tax Offices

Harold R. All, Chicago District Director, Internal Revenue Service, announces that plans have been completed to consolidate four South Side field offices. This major move will result in centralized service operations for the South Side of Metropolitan Chicago.

A new modern one-story brick building has been constructed at 724 West 64th St., Chicago 21, Ill. It will be the focal point for Internal Revenue activities in the south areas of Metropolitan Chicago and was designed to meet the specific needs of the Service.

The operations formerly conducted at 5020 South Harper Ave., 817 West Exchange Ave., 7949 South Ashland Ave. and 7919 South Collage Grove Ave. were transferred to the new location May 29.

Seven groups of Revenue Officers, supervisor personnel and a clerical force of more than 80 employees will staff the new office. This centrally located office will be easily accessible because excellent local and south suburban public transportation facilities are available.

MORE THAN 400 SONGS WRITTEN ABOUT PHONES

The average person may not think of the telephone as a musical instrument. It isn't, and yet it does have an influence in the musical world. There are more than 400 songs or musical compositions written about the telephone.

Most familiar probably is the sentimental ballad, "All Alone By the Telephone."

The composers first began using the phone as a subject way back in 1877 when a ditty titled "The Wondrous Telephone" hit the market.

Anyone remember "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven"? The lyrics go on to add: "For they say my Mamma's there."

Then, there's "Pennsylvania 6-5000" and "The Telephone March," the latter a polka composed back in the 1870's.

No one has volunteered the statistics, but it could be that there are as many songs about telephones as there are about moonlight and June nights.

COURTESY

It is considered courteous under normal circumstances to let the caller terminate the telephone conversation.

Brief History of Telephones in Antioch Area

On July 26, 1898—nearly 63 years ago—the telephone came to Antioch. The first phone was installed in the home of L. M. Haynes.

In those early days there were two telephone companies here. The Village of Antioch in 1898 passed a franchise ordinance. It authorized the Chicago Telephone Company to furnish phone service for the village. There was also an independent telephone company, of which C. E. Herman was the first manager.

By May, 1899 the small—but growing—Independent company served 12 customers while the competing exchange served 15.

In April, 1902, the Chicago Telephone Company bought the Antioch exchange from Mr. Herman. The switchboard was moved to the home of W. T. Hill, on Main Street, near the intersection of Archer.

By December, 1902, there were 34 phones in Antioch and the population was estimated at a little over 600 people.

The Chicago Telephone Company, in April, 1904, secured from the Lake County board a franchise covering all the lake shore towns in the county and new, non-exclusive franchises for the towns of Cuba, Elia, Grant and Antioch.

Antioch, always a popular summer resort, continued to grow. To care for this growth a special telephone switchboard was installed in April, 1905, and Margaret O'Connor was hired to assist Miss Binmore, Antioch's first operator.

In 1906, Antioch's permanent population was 1,200 and there were 72 phones serving its citizens. The Grace Building on Main Street became "headquarters" for phone operations in September, 1907 and Mrs. Leonore Hughes, a former operator in Plano, Illinois, was appointed commission manager.

During the next 30 years (1907-1937) the telephone played an increasingly important role in the life of Antioch residents. To meet the demand for swift communications, cables and poles and many additional phones were installed. By 1930, for example, there were 693 phones in service. Later on in 1938, a five position switchboard was installed.

In the early forties, Antioch phone users were making 4,100 local calls and 880 long distance calls a day and Antioch operators were busier than ever before. When World War II started an emergency engine was installed to maintain power to run telephone equipment. By 1944, Antioch had 1,000 telephones and more operators were hired to handle the calls.

Because of more growth, the Antioch business office was moved in May, 1946 from 968 Victoria Street to the first floor of the old Wilton residence at 970 Victoria.

By August, 1948 thirty-eight operators were required to handle the number of phone calls placed through the nine position switchboard. By then, local calls jumped to 12,100 a day and long distance calls to 2,400.

In July, 1948, Illinois Bell bought land for a new dial office on Lake Street. Later on, in September, Bell leased the ground floor space at 960 Main Street for a new and enlarged Antioch business office.

After the larger Antioch business office opened on Feb. 12, 1949, the telephone became even more a part of life in Antioch. More cable was installed and more telephones were put into service.

By the end of December, 1950, there were nearly 2,000 telephones in Antioch. Of this total, about 200 were extension phones.

In 1956 Illinois Bell purchased another site located at 968 Victoria. Previously this had been leased for Antioch's central office. By December 17, 1956, the one story building addition at 968 Victoria was completed. At the end of 1956, over 2,000 telephones were in use.

Illinois Bell, believing in the future of Antioch, purchased land on the northeast corner of Hillside and Lake Streets. This was for the company's new dial building, recently completed and dedicated by civic officials.

In May, 1960 ground was officially broken for the new dial office. (The office will be completed this summer and Antioch will then have one of the finest communications arrangements in the nation.)

When all Antioch phones are converted to dial, phone users here will be able to dial each other. They will also be able to dial over 68 million other telephones across the nation because all phones here will be equipped for direct distance dialing.

At dial conversion time telephone customers will receive modern, new style, all figure numbers too. The distinctive numbers will look like this: 395-9981.

"All number calling is the numbering plan of the future," Illinois Bell manager Donald L. Hood said. "Antioch phone users will enjoy dialing their own calls. And they'll find dialing the new style numbers fast, easy and accurate," he continued.

Looking into the long range future of communications, Manager Hood said:

"I predict a telephone for your car will be as commonplace as power steering. I further predict the day when people will be able to see each other when they talk by phone. Finally, I predict that in the not-too-distant future, men and women will be able to see what they buy by phone. And they and their families will be able to visit museums by phone; take study courses by phone—and perhaps some day even call the library and ask for books and reference material, and read them by phone."

"Antioch's telephone history is a dynamic one. The future of communications here will be even more dynamic and remarkable. And we'll continue to try to give the people of Antioch the finest communications available," Hood concluded.

Handy Booklet Promotes Chicago

A comprehensive and handy guide to "summer in Chicago" has been published by the American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

This 24-page, pocket-sized booklet offers residents and visitors a complete listing of the many activities which make Chicago a unique vacationland.

The book includes summer and downtown theatre schedules, listings of home games for the city's two major league baseball teams, the College All Star football game, concerts in Ravinia and Grant Parks, and the fabulous International Trade Fair featuring entertainment and choice products from more than 40 nations.

Among the permanent recreational attractions detailed in the booklet are Chicago's museums, zoos and conservatories, tours and cruises. For the participant sportsman, a complete listing of city and county golf courses, swimming pools and beaches, picnicking and fishing facilities in and around Chicago, is included.

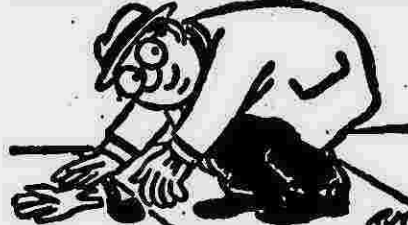

"1961-Summer in Chicago" is also the theme for the Banks' current twelve window display series. Each window illustrates one of the varied activities detailed in the brochure.

The free booklet can be obtained at the summertime information desk on the main floor savings department. In addition, the desk has supplies of maps of Chicago, Illinois tourist guides, and a folder on important financial arrangements everyone should consider prior to leaving on vacation. The "Summer in Chicago" booklet may also be obtained by writing or calling the Public Relations Division, American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, LaSalle at Washington, Chicago 90, Ill.

PEAK PERIODS

City telephones generally are busiest between 9 and 11 a.m. when business is in full swing. There is another peak between 4 and 5 p.m. Residence telephones usually are busiest about 7 p.m.

The Old Timer

WOOD RESISTS HEAT

Air conditioning engineers have less of a "heat gain" problem when a house has wood windows. Frames and sash of windows of ponderosa pine are natural insulators. The wood resists the flow of heat from outside instead of conducting it into the house, as metal sash and frames do.

Dial Phone Equipment Talks

Hm-m-m... Beep... Beep...
Whrrr... Buzz... Buzz...
If you hear sounds like these, chances are they aren't coming from a satellite in outer space—it's just the new dial equipment "talking" to you through your telephone.
Yes, your new dial telephone really can "talk" to you.
That is, it can talk to you if you understand its language.
One of your telephone's most important messages is the dial tone—a steady humming sound which indicates the equipment is ready to handle your call. If you don't wait for this sound before dialing, you'll only "mix up" the equipment and fail to get the number you want. With the dial tone, the equipment is really saying "Here I am—at your service."

When you've completed dialing, wait a moment and you'll hear a brrr-brrr sound. This means the telephone you've called is ringing. Be sure to let the telephone ring long enough for the party to answer.

If you pause too long before dialing—that is, you don't begin to dial or interrupt your dialing for more than a few seconds—the equipment will automatically stop. This is its way of saying "Hey, mister, you're jamming up my equipment by not finishing your dialing, and I've had to disconnect you. Please hang up and start all over again."

If the number you are calling is busy, your telephone will let you know with a steady buzz-buzz sound. When you hear this sound, hang up and wait a few minutes before calling again.

If you hear a sort of "siren-like" sound after you've dialed a number, don't panic. It's probably not an air raid—just a signal to let you know you've dialed a non-working prefix. Better check your directory again.

Your equipment really lets you know when you leave the receiver off the hook, too. A "howler" penetrates through your house to let you know wherever you are that you forgot to hang up the receiver. It's saying "Hey, mister, come here and hang me up! I can't complete any calls to your phone until you do."

Yes, as you can see, your dial system has a language all its own. Now that you know how it "talks"—Hum-mmm... Buzz... Buzz... you'll never confuse it with a message from outer space.

Guiding Spending Habits of Children

URBANA—If your child will be earning money this summer, here are some management pointers from a University of Illinois extension family life specialist.

Mrs. Marguerite B. Lynch says that, whether the earnings are small or large, it's wise to counsel with your child about using his money before he has made unwise purchases. Likewise, it's best to talk things over with him before he's made definite plans without your guidance. Trying to change his mind at the final moment creates more unpleasantness than good management habits.

As you talk with the child, discover what he wants or thinks he needs. Then you can point out other choices and lead him to see the total picture. Talking over both the advantages and the disadvantages of each possibility will help him arrive at a wise decision.

Your guidance can help your child learn that money goes further with planned spending. To discourage wasteful spending, it's wise to encourage him to choose definite goals that he can understand and attain.

However, Mrs. Lynch points out that it's a mistake to let children deliberately sacrifice and save for a definite goal, such as a bicycle, and then forbid them to buy it. Such misleading only encourages poor habits.

Mrs. Lynch cautions parents not to expect a child to always use his money wisely. Adults don't either. And, finally, remember that individuality shows up in money matters too. You can anticipate that no two of your children will want to use their money in the same way.

You will find more information on helping children learn to use money wisely in the University of Illinois College of Agriculture Circular 741, "Your Child and His Money." For a copy, see your county home adviser or write to 112 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

SKIVVIES ARE BLOCKING TOOLS

One of the reasons your dial telephone system won't work until the "zero" hour Sunday is "Skivvies."

Skivvies are blocking tools which prevent dial apparatus from functioning. They are wedged between contact points to insulate them.

The fibre insulators are about the length of a thumb nail and the width of a match stick. They are strung together by twines.

At a given signal at 2 a.m. Sunday, they'll be yanked out—hence the term "pulling the skivvies"—and the dial equipment will be ready to go to work.

PROMPTNESS

When your telephone rings, it is a good idea to answer promptly. Otherwise your caller may hang up and you may miss an important call. It also is wise for the caller to give the person called time to answer in case it is not practical to do so immediately.

Emergency Equipment Always Available

Several devices are employed in the new telephone building to keep communications open in the event of power failure.

Near the section which contains batteries for line current are two large diesel engines capable of producing enough voltage to operate the entire office, including the air conditioning system.

Ordinarily, however, the diesels would not be brought into use unless there is a prolonged failure.

For temporary cut offs in commercial electricity, the company has an emergency alternator which provides enough 115 volt alternating current to keep the switchboards, clocks and master timer in operation.

This alternator begins to function simultaneously with an outside power failure. It uses direct current from batteries to run the motor and the output is an alternating current.

Also set to change automatically if the power source is cut off is the ringing machine. This is the motor-generator which supplies a 20-cycle ringing current for the system.

One of them operates on regular commercial power, 115 volt, 60-cycle A. C. The other operates from direct current provided by batteries. If power fails, the job of "ringing" telephones is transferred automatically to the standby motor.

BUSINESS OFFICE

Service representatives are available at the telephone business office at 932 Main St. from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday to provide information about bills, service, etc. Today call them on "9981." Starting Sunday the number will be "395-9981."

Alexander Graham Bell Predicted Cross Country Telephone Service

"It is conceivable that cables of telephone wires could be laid underground or suspended overhead, communicating with private dwellings, counting houses, shops, manufacturing plants. . . . Not only so, but I believe in the future, wires will unite different cities, and a man in one part of the country may communicate by word of mouth with another in a distant place."

These words of prophecy were by Alexander Graham Bell in 1878—two years after he had successfully demonstrated that voice communication by wire was possible. Bell was 27 years old when he worked out the principle of transmitting speech electrically, and 29 when his basic telephone patent was granted in 1876.

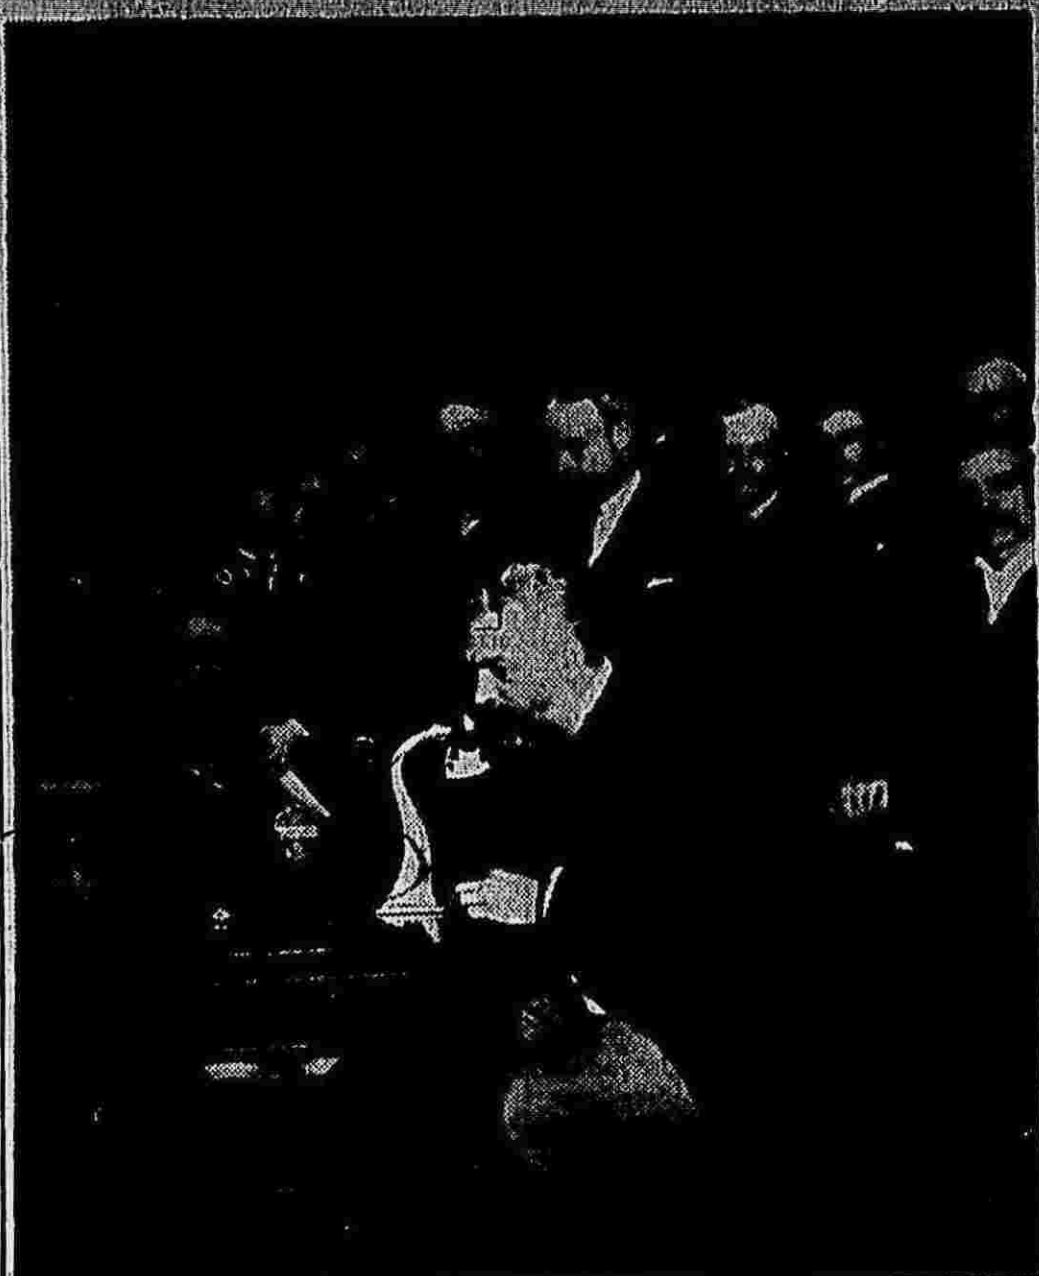

His invention was not a happy accident, but the result of long years of scientific training from which he gained an exceptional knowledge of how sounds of speech and music are created and heard.

He was intensely interested in the problems of the deaf and once told his family he would rather be remembered as a teacher of the deaf than as the inventor of the telephone.

However, his achievement in telephone was of such importance that the fame of this man will always be associated with it.

At first, he was not attempting to transmit speech, rather he was trying to send several telegraph messages over a single wire at the same time.

It was during experiments on his

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL at the opening of the New York-Chicago long distance telephone line, 1892.

"harmonic telegraph" that Bell's imaginative mind leaped beyond previous research.

Effects of electromagnetic induction already were known and he began to wonder if a current could be introduced into a circuit by various pitches of sound, and if this current could vibrate a receiver at the other end so sounds could be repeated.

Bell marveled at the ability of the tiny diaphragm called the eardrum to move the comparatively big bones of the human ear. If it could gather and transmit complex sounds, could not a single diaphragm take the place of all the "tuned reeds" he had envisioned in his theoretical harmonic transmitter?

Then he conceived the final idea: The end of a magnetized reed could be attached to the center of a small diaphragm; as it vibrated to voice waves or music, it would generate a current that would also vary in intensity, just as the air varies in intensity when a sound is passing through it!

He had worked out the principle of the telephone.

But he still doubted the induced currents would be strong enough to activate a receiver. Moreover, he told his friend, Joseph Henry, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, that he lacked the electrical knowledge to bring his theory to practical conclusions.

Henry simply replied, "Then, get it."

On June 2, 1875, Bell and his friend, Thomas A. Watson, were working in a garret at 109 Court St., Boston. Bell at one end of the line and Watson at the other in a different room, were tuning reeds on their harmonic telegraph.

One of Watson's reeds was screwed down so tightly that it "froze" to the pole of the electromagnet. Bell at the other end of the line heard a sound quite different from the usual whine of the vibrating transmitter. He heard the distinctive twang of a plucked reed, a sound with tones and overtones, coming to him over the wire.

It soon became apparent that the reed, too tight to send an intermittent current, had acted as a diaphragm and sent an induced undulating current over the line—a current that varied in intensity precisely as the air was varying in intensity with the sound.

The receiving reed pressed against Bell's ear had also acted as a diaphragm. And most important of all, the induced current had been strong enough to be of use.

The men went on with their experiments and on March 10, 1876, on the top floor of a boarding house at 5 Exeter Place, Boston, Bell and Watson prepared to try out their idea of a transmitter which used liquid to produce variations in current.

Watson went to the other end of the line and put the receiver to his ear. Almost at once he heard Bell's voice saying:

"Mr. Watson, come here, I want you."

Watson rushed down the hall, burst into Bell's room and shouted: "Mr. Bell, I heard every word you said—distinctly!"

Bell had spilled some acid over his clothes.

But the accident was forgotten. The dream of voice communication by wire had become a reality.

Switchboard Remains as Part of Modern Dial Telephone Office

Switchboards still are part of Antioch's new telephone system, although the change to dial finds them located at 125 E. Church Street, in Libertyville.

In many respects, the boards at Libertyville reflect the advances in communication which have made possible the dial system itself.

Manual operation, in fact, is interwoven with the widespread dial network constructed by the Bell System.

The key to this modern operation, as far as long distance calls are concerned, is a system of lines known to the operators as "outer world trunks."

These appear on the board as a narrow strip of tiny holes or receptacles for the connecting jacks. A light indicates which trunks are open at any particular time.

Here's how these trunks facilitate traffic in conjunction with dial: A resident of Antioch wants to place a long distance call, but doesn't know the number of the number of the party he wants to call.

By dialing "O" on his phone, he causes a light to appear on the switchboard in the "395" (Antioch) section. The operator "plugs in" and answers the call.

Learning the Antioch customer wants to reach someone in San Francisco, for instance, the local operator contacts San Francisco "information."

Here's where the dial magic takes over. At the operator's fingertips on the desk are 10 vertical keys similar to those on some small adding machines. They correspond to the letters and numbers on a telephone dial, except that the operator can depress the keys in sequence more rapidly than a dial can be operated.

By plugging a connecting jack into one of the open "outer world" trunks, indicated by lights, and quickly pressing the keys for the San Francisco code number, she sets in motion the dial impulses which reach that city.

The Antioch party can obtain, directly from San Francisco information, the number of the person he wishes to call. He will then hang up and place the call directly by dialing the number given him.

This is merely one of many services switchboards provide.

Others include local information which is obtained by dialing "411," assistance in the event of cut offs or wrong numbers, instructions on proper dialing, placing collect or person-to-person calls, aid during emergencies, and similar service to customers.

The board has an arrangement for "over-flow" in police and fire calls. If these emergency numbers are busy, the call is automatically routed to the operator who will complete it if the caller needs immediate assistance.

Routing sheets indicate which towns have dial facilities and which are manually operated.

UNIVERSAL PROBLEM

Spanish—"Ud. tiene el numero equivocado."

French—"Vous avez le mauvais numero."

Italian—"Lei ha il numero sbagliato."

English—"You've got the wrong number."

THESE FOLKS, pictured working in Antioch's busy telephone office, care for the communication's needs of the Antioch and North Antioch telephone customers.

Accent is on the Three "R's"

The accent is on the Three R's for youngsters in school.

In the Illinois Bell offices here, there's a slight change in alphabetical emphasis for girls with the honey voices.

They are the service representatives. Keynote of their work is the Three P's—personality, poise and politeness.

Service representative is the company designation for members of a diplomatic corps of women whose job is to appease the customer's wrath, reconcile him with his neighbor on the party line, advise him on changing service to fit his needs, and explain why and where his bill should be paid.

All calls to the business office are referred to them. Girls must be masters of several trades—trouble shooting, public relations, counseling, salesmanship and friendly persuasion.

To help acquire these skills, the girls normally take a six-week training course in the art of pleasing the public as well as selling the company services.

Most of them are experienced as operators and are picked for their ability to get along well with hundreds of unseen but frequently heard customers of the firm.

"Of course, there are some complaints and misunderstandings," said Betty Smith who has been a service representative and Illinois Bell employee for many years. "But the occasional complimentary call or card we get helps offset them."

Assistance to customers is the primary duty of all the girls.

They are trained and prepared to answer a multitude of questions. They likewise are in a position to offer advice for customers who are moving, having difficulty with phone service or thinking of putting in an extension.

Best of all, if they don't have the answers, they can quickly connect a caller with the person who does.

DIRECT DIAL TO CHICAGO

If you are an Antioch telephone user with a one or two party line, you may dial direct to more than 100 "Chicagoland" communities in addition to over 150 exchanges in Chicago.

These communities are all in the "312" numbering area, and it's easy to call them. Just dial the seven-figures or the two letters, five-figures of the number you are calling.

Sunday "D Day" Dial Day Here

Sunday is "D Day"—Dial Day—for Antioch.

Equipment in the new Antioch telephone building at 531 Lake St. will spring into action at 2:00 a.m. on August 20, and calls will begin flowing through the new dial telephone system.

"Introduction of our new triple feature service—dial, Direct Distance Dialing, and new style numbers—here gives us the most modern service available," said telephone manager D. L. Hood.

"Besides being able to dial local and suburban calls, one and two party telephone users here will be able to dial many of their own long distance calls with nationwide direct distance dialing—a special feature of our new system. This will put more than 67,000,000 telephones at our fingertips."

New style, 7-figure telephone numbers, beginning with three figures "395" in Antioch and "396" in North Antioch will be introduced with dial service. Distribution of special local directories containing these numbers began this week.

Hood asked that anyone who hasn't received the directory as yet to call the telephone business office, 9981 (395-9981 after Sunday), to get his copy.

He also suggested that telephone users remember to consult the directory for new numbers—and for instruction on dialing—before making local calls.

Changing some 4,300 telephones in Antioch to dial marks completion of a giant improvement program for the area, according to Wire Chief Ernie Sydow. After long months of planning, the program began officially when ground was broken for the new Antioch dial building in March, 1960.

"The early morning hour was not selected as the time of the change-over to dial for any dramatic reason," Chief Operator Irene Noble explained, "but only because that's when the fewest number of calls normally are going through the exchange. This will keep interruption of service to a minimum."

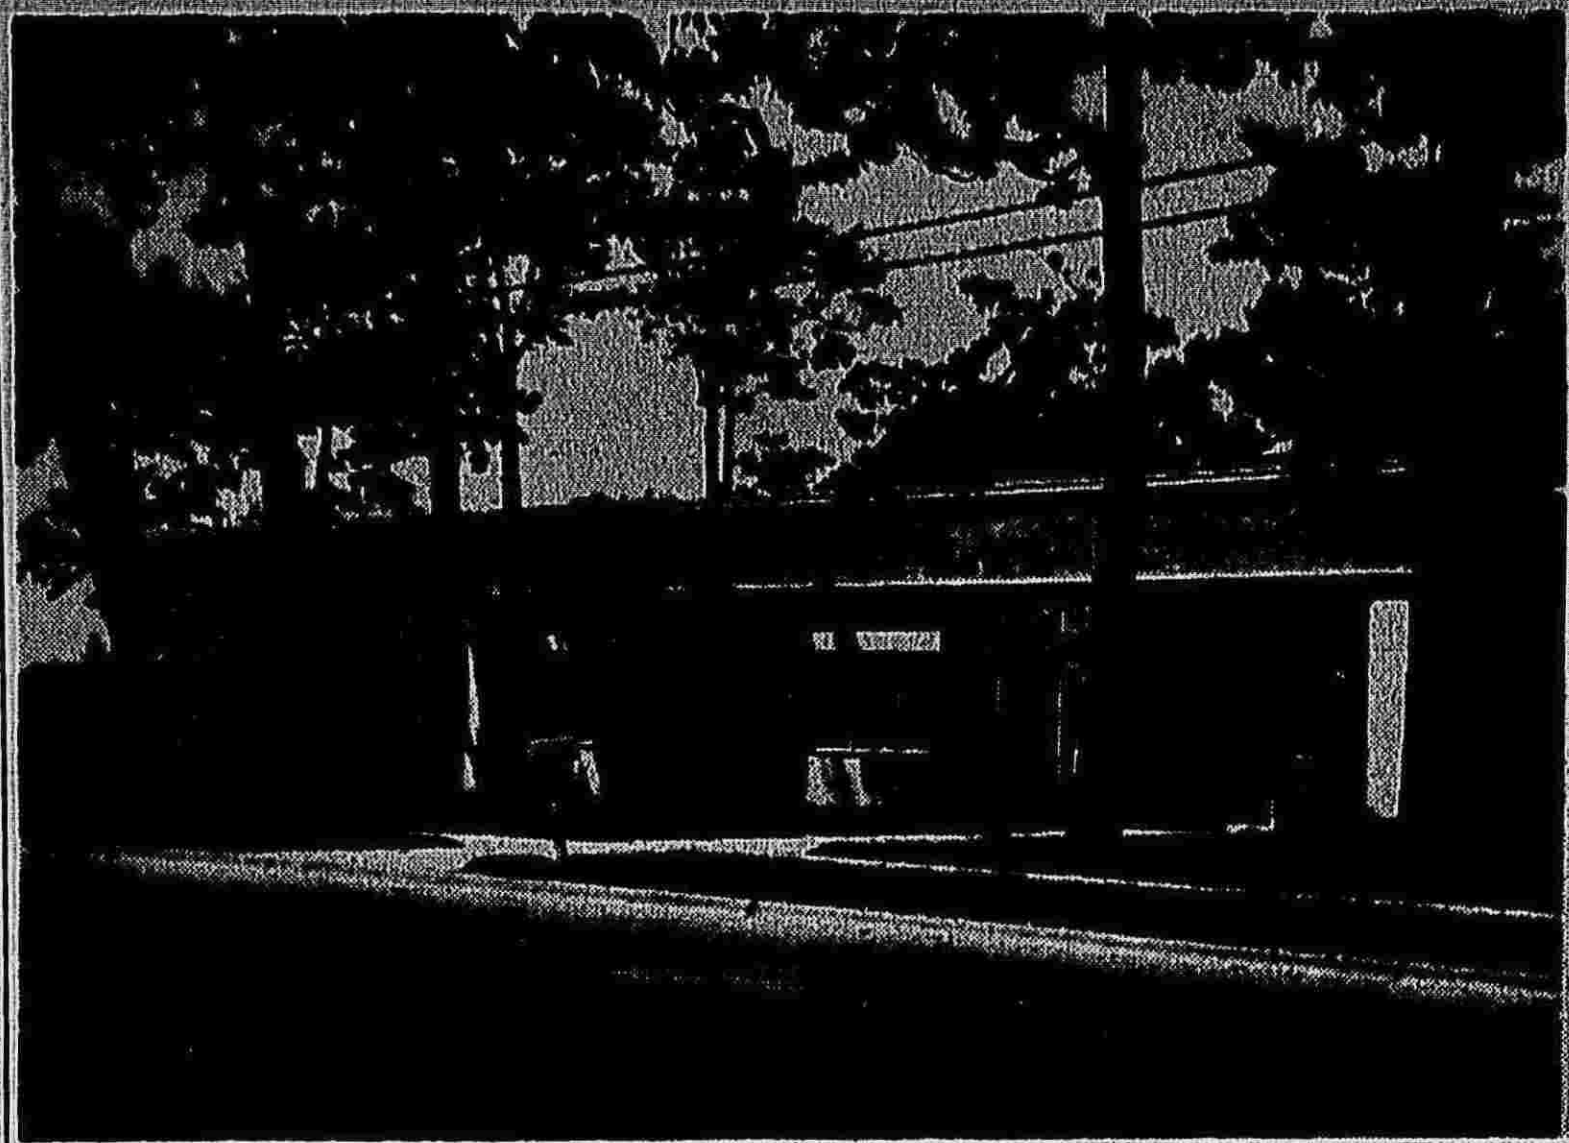

"Of course," she added, "if there are any emergency calls in progress we'll delay the change until after the emergency has passed."

Operators will still be at work "behind the dial." They'll be available to handle calls to information and those out-of-town calls which cannot be dialed direct, as well as give assistance in emergencies.

Mrs. Noble said all regular operators will continue their employment with Illinois Bell except for a few who wish to leave the company for personal reasons.

One and two party telephone users can make many of their long distance calls to points from New York to California by first dialing a three-figure "Area Code," then the regular number.

Complete instructions for dialing local and out-of-town calls are included in the information pages of the new directory, Hood said.

ALL ABOUT BABIES

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

By Aline B. Auerbach
Director, Parent Group Education
Child Study Association of America

Most children fuss about going to bed at one time or another. They know when they are hungry, but they rarely know when they are tired, especially when they are very young.

Even when they are obviously exhausted many small children do not yet recognize that sleep will make them feel better. To them going to bed means being separated from the grown-ups and their fun. They will call you back, or ask for "another drink of water" just to keep your company.

Before your child's bedtime, it's a good idea to play quietly with him for a time, giving him all your attention. You might read to him or tell him a favorite story or look at a picture book together.

Let your child have a minute's warning, then go with him to his room to help him settle down. Most of all, let him know that you expect him to go to sleep.

This is a place where regular procedures make clear to him what he is to do and give him a pattern to follow that makes it easier for him to accept. Parents sometimes resent doing the same thing night after night, but a regular routine at bedtime seems to be a kind of magic which helps a young child move from waking to sleeping. The same steps followed in more or less the same way, reassure him that everything is all right and will be the same when he wakes up.

Your child may always want to take a special blanket to bed with him, or a favorite toy. Many children do. These objects help a child to give up his wish to stay with the rest of the family and especially with his mommy and daddy. It is as if he were taking something with him in their place, to stay with him and comfort him. In time, he'll learn to go to sleep without these objects.

Never use going to bed as a punishment. This makes it something he surely doesn't like. If you understand that going to bed isn't always easy for small children, you will be better able to help your little one accept that this is a "must."

The one-year-old usually has about two or three words which he clearly associates with a person or object. At 18 months, this increases to approximately 10 or 20 words. By his second birthday, the child usually achieves the 100-word mark and by his third birthday, a few hundred words.

Up until 18 months, one word implies a whole sentence or an entire situation. Bottle, which will probably come out as "babble" until the child can master the "t" sound, may mean, "I'm hungry," or "I'm not through with my milk, give it back." Although "bow wow" refers to the dog, it may also mean, "where is he?" or "I love him," or "there he is," or any other thought about the pet.

At two years, the child puts words together. He may say, "Bobby go" or "me go." It is in his third and fourth year that the child graduates to simple four and five-word sentences.

Mastery of sound, like all other aspects of language development, is up to the individual child. Generally, however, parents can expect their child to pronounce the letters p, b, m, w and h at three and one-half years. A year later, he will work with d, t, n, g, ing and y. At five and one-half he should master the difficult f and v, and at six and one-half to seven and one-half, s, sh, z, th, l and r.

The timetable for the mastery of sounds is not a rigid one. Many factors are involved. For example: A child who is vigorous and energetic will learn through concrete experience.

TEEN-AGER IS HARD TO PLEASE

The parents of a teen-ager had for her convenience a second telephone installed in her bedroom.

Although she appreciated the thoughtfulness she continued to use the family phone, as before. One night after a long telephone conversation with a school friend, her father protested. Why, he asked, didn't she use her own phone?

The daughter's answer was quick. "Why," she explained, "If I use my phone and someone tried to call me, the line would be busy."

NEW SYSTEMS BEING TESTED IN LABORATORY

An underground pipeline is used by Bell Laboratories for experiments in carrying radio waves at far higher frequencies than any now in commercial use. Scientists believe it may someday be possible to send as many as 400,000 telephone conversations through a pair of the tubes at the same time.

Also, the possibility of transmitting facsimiles of documents and papers may open the way to new types of communication.

REPAIRS

For telephone repairs and to report a telephone out of order, customers should dial "611."

DIRT IS FOR OF RUGS

No housewife is a stranger to dust and dirt—an enemy that confronts her every time she empties a vacuum cleaner bag. But it took a recent year of research study to give this stubborn foe the proper dimension. It weighs approximately 108 pounds in the six room house and 80 percent of this—87 pounds—ends up on floor coverings. Not all of it can be dislodged with the vacuum cleaner and what remains—the gritty stuff—shortens the life of rugs and carpets.

Wilbur Gage, president of Magikist, developers of a highly specialized rug and carpet cleaning system, is authority for the above figures. Professional cleaning, he believes, is the only possible guarantee that rug life can be extended to a maximum and colors maintained year in and year out.

Regular carpet sweeping and vacuum cleaner application is essential, he says, but cleaning in a professional manner is what removes the tiny bits of stone, coal, clay and pumice whose razor sharp edges destroy finest fibres and delicate colors which originally attracted the rug buyer's attention.

Write for booklet of 300 Household Hints and leaflet on Rug and Carpet Care. Send 10¢ to cover mailing cost. Magikist Home Office, Chicago 44, Ill.

Suffer the little children to come unto me... for to such belongeth the kingdom of God.—(Luke 18:16).

As we consciously give our thought to all children as being kept in God's love, guided by His wisdom, protected by His presence, we give them a real blessing.
